

Say Boo to Zoos

Why are we doing this?

We assume that since animals cannot talk we know what's best for them and can make decisions for them. That is incorrect. Animals come from a different world than we do and have their own lives to live. We cannot put them in any environment to help accommodate for what we want all the time. That is why Kashia and I went to our local zoo, the Philadelphia Zoo, to observe the animal's behavior when put into a room to be observed by the public. When observing certain animals like primates, I noticed that most of them looked rather sad and bored living in there. While others like lions and tigers, who live in an open space outside were a little aggressive. Watching the animals lay in their man-made habitats made me feel really dead inside. Especially, seeing the polar bear outside on a partially cool day, living alone. He wasn't happy just like most of the animals there. That is why we say no to the created creation and preservation of zoos.

JUSTICE FOR HARABEE

Within 1 week

In May, a gorilla and two lions were killed after humans entered their zoo enclosures

PROFITABLE

$6 million in sale

goes to the animal pharmaceutical industry in 2010 in the United States

EDUCATIONAL ?

It is proven that in fact, zoos are in no way educational. The same information you learn at a zoo you could actually research yourself online.

EUROPEAN ZOOS

20 to 30 animal's per year

are killed in European zoos even if they are healthy animals.
